

provinces of Bengal and Orissa. The chief claim made for his book by the author is that the work of this successful Mission has not been presented to the world in any other form. Traveling as he did, however, "in a path lighted by the preceding gospel," there is much of general interest in regard to other lands and other missions.

In the Path of Light Around the World. A Missionary Tour. By Rev. Thomas H. Stacy. Illustrated. F. H. Revell Co.

This handsome volume is indeed "illustrated," and by more than 150 beautiful half-tone views of scenes visited and photographed by the author. Crossing to San Francisco, thence to Japan and China, and dropping down to India, Mr. Stacy returned by the usual route through Egypt, Palestine, Italy, France, and England. About one fourth of the 241 pages is given to the American Free Baptist Mission in the East India

---