

bring out with new emphasis what was before known of this remarkable man. They show him a Christian in all senses, holding to Jesus Christ in absolute faith and to his Bible. At the same time he accepted Christ and his Gospel on the catholic side, and appears in these letters with his catholic side turned toward the Arab. The letters are eminently bold and suggestive. He was not a man to be restrained in his freedom of thinking. His position at Khartûm and relations with the government at home do not seem to receive much illumination in this letter. Their chief value is the comfort and help to be derived from reading them, which is rich and great. (Price $2.00.)

—We commended the first edition of these sermons of Edward J. Hardy, Chaplain to H. M. Forces, and author of those admirable booklets "How to be Happy Though Married" and "Manners Make the Man." Faint Yet Pursuing, and Other Sermons, now brought out again by Thomas Whittaker is a collection of manly, pithy and effective sermons, preached for the most part to soldiers, and all the better for that. —Published by A. D. F. Randolph & Co. is Holy in Christ: Thoughts on the Calling of God's Children to be Holy as He is Holy, by the well-known veteran writer on themes of this class, the Rev. Andrew Murray, whose "Abide in Christ," "Like Christ," "With Christ," and "The Children for Christ," are familiar to all who have been interested in the "Higher Life" and "Holiness" literature. —Every man in his own way, and the Rev. Dr. Dix in his way, tho it has a little touch of the ecclesiastic in it which shows plainly that it is not our way! It is, nevertheless, honest, forcible and very much needed at this present moment. We should not care to have every pulpit in the country resounding Sunday after Sunday to the key of Dr. Dix's new volume of Lenten Sermons, The Seven Deadly Sins; but considering how little blunt preaching there has been of these points, where social morality is tending, and what a wholly unnecessary commotion has been raised about these sermons, we are glad that they were preached, and glad they are published, and hope they will be read. For an example of plain speaking commend us to the sermon on "Lust." (E. & J. B. Young & Co.)

....The Letters of Gen. C. G. Gordon to his Sister, M. A. Gordon, are published by Macmillan & Co., dedicated, by special permission, to the Queen. These letters