

The H. W. Wilson Company announce a volume of interest not only to the general reader, but to librarians in particular, a volume entitled "Libraries: Addresses and Essays," by John Cotton Dana, the well-known head of the Newark (N. J.) Free Public Library.

Harper and Brothers announce for early autumn publication a new novel by Margaret Deland, the first long novel since her writing of "The Iron Woman."