

EAST ANGELS; A Novel, by Constance Fenimore Woolson. 16mo, $1.25. New York: Harper & Brothers. Miss Woolson's power is seen in her evolution of character and exhaustive subjective picture of a human life. The scene of this volume—a work not as powerful, perhaps, as "Anne," but equally admirably executed—is laid in Florida, and its pictures of Southern social society and scenery are fresh and true to nature and real life. Miss Woolson's imagination is wonderfully fruitful. Her stories grow upon her hands with a remarkable expansiveness and exuberance, but her power never weakens, and the reader is carried on, with little sense of weariness, through the extended, but lively, details. The volume stands out among the few prominent works of imagination of the year, with a good presumption that it will survive the era of its birth.

The National School of Elocution and Oratory, Philadelphia, issues a collection of humorous pieces, in prose and poetry, for reading and recitation, under the title of CHOICE HUMOR. Compiled by Charles C. Shoemaker. 25 cents. The selections seem to be in good taste. The same Society issues the YOUNG FOLKS' SPEAKER, containing selections for the primary department, by Mrs. Shoemaker.

DICK AND HIS SONG, by Emily Frances. Boston: Congregational Publishing Society. This is a nice little story for the youngest readers, very pleasantly told.

D. C. Heath & Co. issue, HABIT AND ITS IMPORTANCE IN EDUCATION. Translated from the German by F. A. Caspari, with an Introduction by G. Stanley Hall, Ph. D. This is a volume for the teacher's library. It is a thorough, philosophical treatise, containing in a condensed form, the fundamental principles upon which all solid intellectual attainments are based. Dr. Hall prefaces the work with an appreciative estimate of its value.

In Harper's Handy Series we have, FRENCH AND GERMAN SOCIALISM IN MODERN TIMES, by Richard T. Ely, Ph. D.—a substantial and valuable contribution to our literature of social science; and KING ARTHUR—not a love story, but a capital, wholesome, well-told tale, its characters admirably drawn, and its climax leaving a pleasant flavor in its remembrance—by the author of "John Halifax, Gentleman."

THE TRIALS AND CRUCIFIXION OF CHRIST, by A. P. Stout. Cincinnati Publishing Co. 16mo, 158 pp. This very useful manual for Sunday-school teachers and pastors, and for the general reader, arranges in chronological order the different accounts of the final trials, before the Sanhedrim and the Roman Governor, of our Lord, with full annotations, and a free, running recital of the events at the foot of the Scripture text. It presents the solemn incidents of Passion week in a very impressive form, and by the added notes assists the Bible student to adjust the difficulties growing out of the different records of the events.

A HAND-BOOK OF ENGLISH HISTORY, Based on the Lectures of the Late M. J. Guest, by Francis H. Underwood, A. M. Boston: Lee & Shepard. 12mo, 614 pp. The foundation of this well-arranged text-book was a series of lectures delivered to classes in a London college. The work has been Americanized when necessary, and the record, which ended with the reign of George III., has been brought down to 1800. A supplemental chapter upon English Literature of the 19th century has been added. A copious index is appended. Mr. Underwood's text-books of literature are well-known and appreciated. He has succeeded in adding to the list a very well-executed and arranged manual of English history. We have examined, with satisfaction, the era of the Plantagenet kings, to form an idea of the character of the work.

FOUR MILES FROM TARRYTOWN, by Fannie H. Gallagher. Boston: Congregational Sunday-school Society. 16mo, $1.00. This is an interesting Western story, the scene laid during the civil war. It is decidedly religious, but full of stirring adventure. No young reader will be likely to put it aside until it is finished.

HOW THEY LEARNED HOUSEWORK. Boston: D. Lothrop & Co. By Christina Goodwin. 75 cents. In a pleasantly-told story, young girls are given very useful information about housekeeping. An amusing history is written of a very practical club formed by four young girls, and their doings.

NEW MUSIC.—From Ign. Fischer, Toledo, Ohio; Stay at Home my Heart, and Rest; words by H. W. Longfellow. music by W. A. Ogden. Break, Break, Break; words by Alfred Tennyson, music by Frederick H. Pease.
