THE BLUE BOOK OF MISSIONS FOR 1905 Edited by Rev. Henry Otis Dwight, LL D., Secretary of the Bureau of Missions. Funk and Wagnalls Company, New York and London, 18mo. pp 242. Price, $1, net. Postage 8 cents.

A vast amount of information on the subject of missions, and the latest information that is obtainable, is packed in this little volume. It will either tell its owner what he wants to know about any foreign mission field, or about the mission work being done by any Missionary Society, Protestant or Roman Catholic, or it will tell him where to get that information. Part I. gives a brief survey of all the foreign mission fields in the world and their religious statistics. Part II., in like manner, gives an account of the Foreign Mission Societies in every nation on the globe, the work they are doing, the literature they are furnishing, etc. And Part III. furnishes a large collection of miscellaneous information, carefully indexed for quick reference. If one wants to know what Roman Catholic Orders or what Missionary Societies are at work in any land, or what it will cost to send a telegram or go himself to that land, or what is the value of the money used there; or what contributions to missions are made by different nations; or what are the tangible results of their labors, this book will give it. It will answer a hundred such questions as these. In short, the book is a useful compendium of missionary information.
