

—Rudyard Kipling is now said to be Henry G. Bruce, the son of a missionary to India, and a graduate of the Harvard class of '87. Mr. Bruce is now in Duxbury, Mass., for a brief holiday.—[Exchange.—As “Rudyard Kipling” is a real name, not a pen-name, and as Mr. Kipling and his father are very well known both in London and in India, Mr. Bruce's friends would do well to request the contradiction of this “news item,” lest it be thought to emanate from them.
